

Rei Maeda

Affiliation:

Safety Planning, Eli Lilly Japan

Education:

Graduated Kyoto Pharmaceutical University in 1982

Licensed Pharmacist

Pharmacovigilance Specialist (Japanese Society for Pharmacoepidemiology)

Professional Experience:

1994-2001: Clinical Development (SOP management, data management, Clinical Research Associate & Team leader)

2002-2004: Post marketing study 2005-2006: Head of Post marketing study group

2007- : Safety risk management, Regulatory interaction

Research interests:

Pharmacovigilance, Real world evidence, Regulatory science

Publications and Presentations:

H. Urushihara, et., al. Increased Risk of Acute Pancreatitis in Patients with Type 2 Diabetes: An Observational Study Using a Japanese Hospital Database, Published: December 27, 2012, <https://doi.org/10.1371/journal.pone.0053224>

R. Maeda, JADER from Pharmacovigilance Point of View, Jpn J Pharmacoepidemiol 2014; 19(1): 51-56)

A. Kokan, et., al. Proposal for the Best Pharmacovigilance Plan in Japan by comparing Japan Postmarketing Studies to the U.S. Postmarketing Requirements : The Final Report from the Task Force, Jpn J Pharmacoepidemiol, 17(1) June 2012 : 55